Abstract: DSDG/UNCRD organized a consultative webinar to initiate discussions on successor of the Ha Noi 3R Declaration – Sustainable 3R Goals for Asia and the Pacific (2013-2023) on 24 March. The webinar was attended by 70 participants from 19 countries comprising high level national and local government representatives and policy makers, experts and international resource persons, representatives of UN and international organizations, including international financial institutions, multilateral development banks and donor agencies, representatives of the private sectors, NGOs and other stakeholders. The webinar discussed the scope and coverage of the new Declaration, with all participants agreeing to having it closely aligned with the SDGs and other global agendas and agreements such the Paris Agreement on climate change, NUA, Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction, etc. The participants also recommended to have it address a number of areas, such as resilient supply chains, plastic wastes, chemical wastes, end-of-life products, integration of 3Rs and circular economy in formal education, digitalization and new emerging technologies such as IoT, robotics, big data, block chain, and environmental co-benefits and their intersection with regional development and socio-economic benefits.
